OMB Greenlights Caledon’s Mayfield West Project

Caledon is claiming victory in proceeding to the second phase of Mayfield West. It’s being seen as a once-in-a-generation development that will take shape in the next few years as part of the Town’s Official Plan. “This is a historic decision for the Town of Caledon,” said Mayor Allan Thompson. “It is the culmination of years of work by council and staff both past and present working with the community, and confirms our tri-nodal growth plan.” Mayfield West Phase II is 207.5 hectares of land bordered by Mayfield Road to the south, Hurontario Street to the east and the Etobicoke Creek to the north. The Plan calls for all modes of development to be considered. Caledon’s plans call for compact, transit-supportive, pedestrian and cyclist friendly living.

Collectively, these measures are expected to produce a healthy, safe and balanced community with a population of 10,348 people plus 3,799 related jobs. A diverse mix of land uses, a range of employment and housing types, high quality public open space and easy access to local amenities and services are key components in the complete community plan.

Arrests in Brampton Home Invasion

by Marco Patrone

Peel Police have arrested two men and a woman in connection with a home invasion. Officers say the break in happened around 1:20 p.m. early Monday morning. Three suspects were spotted breaking into a home in the area of Laurelcrest Street and Vodden Street East in the City of Brampton. The resident was home at the time and called police. Officers arrested Nathan Cox, a 25-year-old male from Brampton and charged him with break and enter. They also charged 31-year old Jamall Brandon Smith from Brampton with break and enter. Cassondra Foerter was the third person charged in the incident. All three are set to appear before the Ontario Court of Justice in Brampton Thursday July 13, 2017. Peel Regional Police are reminding residents who think their home is being broken into not to confront a burglar, but instead to call 911.

Elderly man in critical condition as vehicle hits pedestrian in Mississauga

Peel Police are looking for help after a vehicle struck an 83-year-old man in Mississauga on Sunday, June 11. Investigators from the Major Collision Bureau are looking for witness to an incident at the crossing of Dundas Street West and Stanfield Road in Mississauga around 1:45 p.m. where an elderly man was struck.

Police say the victim was hit by a tractor-trailer and the vehicle remained on scene. The elderly victim was transported to a Toronto Trauma Centre where he was listed in serious condition. Police are appealing to anyone who may have seen the accident, has dashboard video footage, or who may have information regarding the actions of the pedestrian or the driver before the collision took place. Anyone with information is asked to contact investigators with the Major Collision Bureau at (905) 453-2121, ext. 3710.

Additional charges laid in Brampton teacher sexual assault case

Police have laid another charge against a Brampton school teacher suspected of sexually exploiting students. Douglas Dale, 45, was charged June 6, with sexual exploitation of a 16-year-old student. Police laid a second charge of sexual assault and sexual exploitation June 8, after a 17-year-old former female student came forward with new allegations. Dale, a math teacher, has worked at Heartlake Secondary School since 1999. A spokesperson with Peel District School Board said that Dale is confined to home pending the conclusion of the investigation.

Agents with Canadian border service have discovered more than 43-kilograms of cocaine below the fake bottom of a cargo container aboard a flight that landed at Pearson International Airport last month. The CBSA officially announced the seizure today at a press conference.

The shipping container originated from flight from Trinidad and Tobago. CBSA says its officers made the discovery after inspecting its contents during a routine screening on May 5. “Upon examining the container further, a false floor was discovered,” a news release said. When officers checked below the floor, they found 38 bricks of cocaine, weighing more than 43-kilograms. The narcotic was handed over to the RCMP. “CBSA officers are always on the lookout for contraband,” CBSA acting regional director general Norm Sheridan said. “This seizure demonstrates our commitment to Canadians.”

Peel Doctor Asks Residents to Take Precautions as Temperatures Rise

by Erica Phillips and Alex Gregory

Because high heat and humidity pose health risks to many people, the Region of Peel is reminding residents to take precautions as the temperatures rise this spring and summer, especially from 10 am to 4 pm.

Residents with the greatest risks of heat-related illness are infants and young children, seniors, people with chronic diseases, and those who are homeless," said Dr. Monica Hau, Associate Medical Officer of Health at the Region of Peel.

"Please take extra precautions to keep cool, and be watchful of friends, family and neighbours who may be vulnerable," she said.

The hot weather didn't stop some residents from going about their daily routines.

Some jogged their usual routes while others, like Aisling McKeown, busied herself with sweeping the stairway at her parents' home as the sun shone overhead.

McKeown said that it's easy to know when you're running the risk of heat exhaustion because you stop sweating.

"You have to remind yourself to drink water," she explained. "When you're sweating, your body is doing what it's supposed to do. When you stop sweating, you're in the danger zone."

Heat related illnesses include, heat stroke, heat exhaustion, and dehydration.

Be aware of and watch those around you for symptoms such as dark yellow urine, dizziness, fainting, vomiting, rapid breathing, rapid heart rate, extreme thirst, and decreased urination.

If you are someone you notice is experiencing those symptoms, get help to cool down with fluids, rest and getting to a cool area and if the symptoms remain, seek medical attention and call 911.

If someone is experiencing confusion, loss of consciousness, not sweating or high body temperature, call 911 immediately.

In a media release, the Region offered several tips to stay safe

- Drink plenty of fluids, especially water.

- Avoid strenuous activities between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., when the sun is at its hottest.

- Wear lightweight and loose-fitting clothing.

- Never leave children, seniors or pets unattended in a parked car.

- Follow the recommendations of a health care provider if you are taking any medications or have a health condition.

- Take cool showers or baths, or use cool, wet towels on the face, neck and/or arms.

Every summer, there are stories about the tragic consequences of doing so. Don't forget to check in on people such as elderly neighbours and family members.

During extreme heat, residents can also stay cool by visiting a nearby air-conditioned library or one of the many community centres in any of the cities.

The Town of Caledon and the Cities of Brampton and

The Region of Peel is urging residents to take caution due to a heat warning, as strenuous physical activity could cause heat stroke, heat exhaustion or dehydration. (Photo by Marco Patrone)

Mississauga will open cooling centres when the Region issues a heat alert.

Cabbies slam 'game-playing' councillors after voting delay on plates

by Marco Patrone

Peel cabbies left Mississauga council chambers in a huff Wednesday after councillors put off a vote on whether to issue 250 new taxi plates.

"They're playing games," said Sami Khairallah, spokesman for the Peel Taxi Alliance.

"They're supposed to rescind that decision and Carolyn (Parrish) decided to put in on for next Wednesday. We'll be here next Wednesday for that decision," he said.

Hundreds of cabbies took time off from their work to pack the council chambers again this week in a show of force aimed at convincing councillors to drop the idea of issuing any more new plates.

They were expecting members to deal with the issue at the Wednesday June 14, 2017 general committee meeting.

Instead, it's being put off to next week's council meeting.

Ward 5 Councillor Carolyn Parrish told the packed council chamber she'll recommend a revised number of new issues from 250 to just 38 at a vote to be held next Wednesday morning, "but there will be no vote on that today," she said.

As cabbies flooded out of the chambers en masse, there was clear frustration evident in the delay.

Parrish's revised number offered little comfort to existing plate owners who've seen the value of their taxi assets plummet since services like Uber were given the blessing to operate in the City.

"What these guys are doing by issuing plates is beyond understanding. They are very ill informed about the consequences of this," said one driver who identified himself only as 'Peter'.

Drivers, already hurting from competition by ridesharing services, are bitterly opposed to the issuance of 250 new plates they say will 'flood the market' with even more competition.

"The plate right now average rent is two to $300.00 per month. You flood the market, you flood the market, and the average income is going to go down more than $1000.00 a month," he said.

There's currently an 18-month pilot project in place allowing services like Uber to operate in Mississauga.

Critics of the project say there will be little left of the city's taxi industry by the time the pilot project ends.

Some drivers have floated the idea of a class action lawsuit against the City if there's no compensation offered owners.

Khairallah says that's on hold for now pending a decision by the City on whether ridesharing services will be allowed to operate permanently once the pilot project is over.

"Exactly, if there is compensation for the business loss when Uber came. If there's a compensation package, that would solve the issue. Probably, the cabs will be able to compete with Uber," he told Peel Daily News.

Brampton Glass Manufacturer Fined $100,000 for Accident

A bottle-manufacturing company in Brampton is feeling the heat after pleading guilty and being fined $100,000 as a result of a worker suffering a permanent injury.

On February 27, 2016, an employee was working at the industrial site in the bottle forming department of O-I Canada Corporation's glass-manufacturing facility, located at 100 West Drive.

The employee and a machine operator were working on a machine known as the Individual Section (IS) bottle making machine, which produces 100 bottles per minute by forming molten "gobs" of glass at 1,200 degrees Celsius.

The worker and the machine operator were jointly performing a standard operating procedure which included inspecting bottles and changing all neck rings and plungers.

Toward the completion of the task, the worker was removing rings from the front of the machine and lost sight of one of the rings.

The machine operator closed the mold so that the worker could reach in and retrieve the ring.

While the worker was reaching in, the mold moved from the closed position to the open position.

When the mold opened, this pinched the worker's hand between the mold and a shaft for several minutes, until a co-worker used a switch to close the mold again.

When the mold closed, the worker was able to remove the hand but suffered critical crush and burn injuries that required surgery and resulted in permanent injury.

A Ministry of Labour investigation followed. It was found that the defendant failed to ensure that control switches or other control mechanisms were locked out and failed to ensure that other effective precautions were taken to prevent the starting of mold-opening motion that could endanger a worker.

The defendant failed to ensure compliance with section 76 of the Industrial Establishments Regulation, contrary to section 25(1)(c) of the Occupational Health and Safety Act.

Section 76 of the regulation requires that where the starting of a machine, transmission machinery, device or thing may endanger the safety of a worker, control switches or other control mechanisms shall be locked out and other effective precautions necessary to prevent any starting shall be taken.

As such, O-I Canada Corporation failed as an employer to ensure that the measures and procedure prescribed by Ontario's Industrial Establishments Regulation were carried out at the workplace.

O-I Canada Corporation was fined $100,000 by Justice of the Peace Milagros Eustaquio-Syme in Brampton court on June 13, 2017.

The court also imposed a 25-per-cent victim fine surcharge as required by the Provincial Offences Act.

The surcharge is credited to a special provincial government fund to assist victims of crime.

Rehabilitation Begins For Small Arms Building in Lakeview

The City of Mississauga will kick off the rehabilitation process for the Small Arms Building in Lakeview this weekend.

Dignitaries and community advocates will come out on June 17 to commemorate the rehabilitation with a groundbreaking ceremony, which will begin at 11 a.m.

The building has been approved for up to $1 million in federal government funding through the Canada 150 Community Infrastructure Program (CIP 150).

The City designated the building under the Ontario Heritage Act in 2009.

The rehabilitation of the building is intended to create a dynamic facility that will support community, culture, arts, and heritage uses.

The Small Arms Building is located at 1352 Lakeshore Road East in Mississauga.

WW II D-Day

Allies invade Normandy June 6, 1944

by Joe Snider

Years of careful planning came to fruition when American, British and Canadian troops landed on the coast of Normandy under General Dwight D Eisenhower and General Bernard Montgomery. Allied planners had kept the Germans guessing as to where the actual landing would be, which meant the Germans had no choice but to position major defences along the whole of the northern coast of France. Even after they got news of the landing Hitler remained convinced that Normandy was a diversion and the main invasion would be at Calais.

The Germans knew that once a landing had been successfully achieved it'd be difficult to repel and concentrated their resistance on the beaches. D-Day was the start of the allied invasion of Occupied Europe - and the victory on the Western Front, code named "Operation Overlord", the landings marked the start of a long and costly campaign to secure victory on the Western front.

Troops were parachuted into drop zones across northern France while ground troops landed on five assault beaches: Utah, Omaha, Gold, Juno and Sword Beach.

By the end of the day, the combined allied forces had established a strong foothold along the coast and could begin their advance into France.

In case you're wondering what the 'D' in D-Day stands for, the short answer: nothing.

In military terms, D-Day and H-Hour are sometimes used for the day and hour on which a combat attack or operation is to be initiated.

They are used when the day and hour have not yet been determined, or when secrecy is important.

High water levels still a cause for concern in Peel

Officials around the GTA are advising residents that water levels on Lake Ontario are stabilizing but still remain high.

It's expected to take several more weeks for lake levels to drop.

The Toronto Islands will likely remain closed until the end of the month, while Mississauga has had new warnings put in place to ward residents away from certain areas.

The JJ Plaus promenade next to Snug Harbour has closed again after briefly reopening, while the pathway underneath the Credit River bridge remains completely submerged underneath water.

Nearby parks including JJ Saddington and Marina Park have had sections cordoned off to the public due to the tide and high water levels.

Reflections on Canada's 150th... and Being Canadian

by Surjit Singh Flora

This year on July 1, we mark the 150th birthday of our nation, Canada.

Like many nations, Canada was born out from under Britain's colonial rule.

Significant to Canada, and reflective of our current and modern spirit, we did so without a fight. That is, there was no bloodshed.

Diplomacy with Britain is what allowed Canada to avoid the battles that cost the lives of so many in search of freedom, as was done in many other places around the world.

Lots of places have freedom, that's not uniquely Canadian.

To me, being Canadian means being a citizen of one of the more sane, civilized, and respected nations on the planet, and a member of a community that includes,

and welcomes, the best the world has to offer.

Pretty much every culture, every society in the world, is represented here.

That was the reason I chose Canada because of the wonderful and helpful Canadians I had met along my life's journey so far.

They were extremely nice, kind and tolerant of my language difficulties when first coming from India in 1989 and helped me learn to speak and read English very quickly.

Canada is successful as a nation because it has always been a country founded and built by people who came here by choice.

These are people who immigrated for a chance at a new life, and who have worked hard, generation after generation to build a tolerant society.

Canada is a tolerant society, where everyone is free to dress as they wish, speak English, French or the language of their birth or ancestry. They are also free to worship and live in relative peace.

Canada is one of the countries in the world where the culture of peace has the deepest roots.

People can freely express their ideas, participate in politics and depend on a fair judicial system to protect their rights.

The country's multicultural policies also help everyone to find their place in the society.

Canada is one of the greatest countries in the world, four seasons, hockey, peace, love - all in abundance.

In other words, great multicultural spirit is what Canada stands for.

The people of Canada have worked hard to build a country that opens its doors to include all, regardless of race, religion, or community, a country that respects and gives equality to all.

If we talk about violence, it's prevalent in every corner of the world today. The difference being, some countries have just a little of it while in others it's more than one can imagine.

Violence is not strictly limited to places where people are fighting.

Violence can also be found in social inequality, discrimination towards women, poverty, the rejection of others because of their differences and unreasonable use of the environment.

Building a culture of peace thus means developing, on a daily basis, the values, ways of thinking and attitudes that are in keeping with equality, tolerance, sharing, generosity and respect.

And Canada is my home now and I have a lot of fondness and love for such a fantastic country.

Canada has given me hundreds of special moments, incredible friends and acquaintances. Now it is part of my life.

I proud to say I am a Canadian and I am also proud that my children will be able to say the same. There is no other country around with the freedom and choices Canada has to offer.

Happy Canada Day to all.

Councillor: Send ‘freeloading’ oil companies the bill when cops chase ‘pump and runners’

by Marco Patrone

A Brampton councillor says an “embarrassing” incident that led police to her home over an unpaid gas station bill is further proof ‘freeloading’ oil companies are using cops as their own collection agency.

“Right now the oil companies have a free collection service at the cost of the taxpayers and that’s not OK,” said Elaine Moore during a meeting of Peel Regional Council Thursday.

Three weeks ago she and her husband both filled up their vehicles at an Ultramar station in Fenelon Falls.

After an error by the attendant in which the cost of only one of the two fill ups was paid, Moore left the station thinking she had paid the full amount when she hadn’t. It was a mistake by the attendant and Moore later produced a receipt for police which proved she hadn’t stolen the fuel but says there’s a much bigger issue here.

“Because of their $45.00 mistake, the OPP in Kawartha Lakes and the Peel Regional Police pay the price. Taxpayers pay the price. The oil companies are using our police resources as a collection agency.”

Moore’s comments were directed towards Police Chief Jennifer Evans who made a presentation at council because it is a matter that concerns law enforcement agencies and taxpayers.

Police Chief Jennifer Evans

Evans responded by saying police deal with gas station ‘pump and dash’ cases quite often. The Ontario Association of the Chiefs of Police has discussed the matter and there’s a general consensus that police resources can be better used.

“We shouldn’t be responding. This should be legislated,” Evans said.

The chief told councillors the problem could be resolved by having people pre-purchase their fuel at the pump. But adds, “the people who run the gas stations who make money on chocolate bars, chips and pop want people to come into the store.”

Moore says, there needs to be a way to “force the oil companies to take the kind of theft reduction measures that they need to.”

Peel Daily News has reached out to the Canadian energy industry and is awaiting a response to our story.

Moore says rules are different in the U.S. where police don’t normally chase petty theft cases involving gas stations.

She says in the U.S, it’s the responsibility of the oil company to have a ‘pay-before-you-pump’ service but not in Canada where, “they got you on video, they got your licence plate number and they’ll use the police to hunt you down.”

“When you look at some of the things that are happening in our communities, shootings and stabbings, mental health, those are our priorities.”

There are cases in which gas and dash cases prove deadly.

In 2011 a Mississauga gas station attendant and father of two died when he tried to prevent a customer from driving away without paying.

MiWay Student Ambassadors Make Transit Cool at School

The winning design for the MiWay Student Ambassador Program.

Submitted photo

Promoting transit while gaining leadership and marketing skills are a few advantages that Rick Hansen Secondary School students Shambhavi Sole and Sandy Liang gained from winning the 2016-2017 MiWay Student Ambassador Program, announced at Mississauga City Council late last week.

“The MiWay Student Ambassador Program is a fun way for high school students to spread the word about MiWay through their school,” said Mary-Lou Johnston, MiWay Manager of Business Development.

“These students are like an extended marketing team who educate young people about the benefits of using transit and MiWay.”

Sole and Liang focused on making transit fun. They used Kahoot, an interactive digital trivia game that engaged more than 200 Rick Hansen students to learn more about the benefits of MiWay.

They also hosted an information table at their school and promoted it through social media.

For their winning entry, Sole and Liang will receive free MiWay transit for one year and an iPad mini. Their school received 50 PRESTO cards valued at two trips per card.

Council also recognized

Kathleen Karunakaran and Jessica Tran of Port Credit Secondary School, the creative team behind the winners of this year’s bus wrap contest.

Their winning submission theme highlights MiWay Through My Community. It tells a story through pictures of travelling around the city to school, recreational activities, work and back home again.

If you know a high school student who would be a whiz at promoting MiWay, have them apply online for the 2017-2018 MiWay Student Ambassador Program. Applications will be accepted until October 31, 2017.

Shambhavi Sole and Sandy Liang, of Rick Hansen Secondary School, were the winners of the 2016-2017 MiWay Student Ambassador Program.

HST Hike a bad idea

John Valorzi
Columnist

Mayor Bonnie Crombie's recent musings about a potential HST hike in the province to help pay for more affordable housing is a non-starter that should never see the light of day.

If such an increase was carried through it could raise nearly $4 billion that Crombie says could be transferred to local governments across Ontario to help deal with the housing crunch.

No doubt cities badly need revenue tools but there are other ways to raise money without persuading the province to hike the HST – a move that would almost certainly seal the political fate of the Liberals in the 2018 June election.

Canadians don't like tax hikes and provincial governments that hike sales taxes usually pay the political price for it. The former NDP government in Manitoba raised the provincial sales tax one percentage point to eight per cent in 2013 and Premier Greg Selinger was thrown out of office in an election last year.

Newfoundland and New Brunswick hike sales taxes two percentage points in 2016 and their provincial governments took a hit in the polls.

The provincial Liberals would have to have their collective heads examined if they hike the HST in a budget next spring two months ahead of the 2018 vote.

When Kathleen Wynne became premier in 2013 she stated firmly that she would not raise sales taxes or hike taxes on middle class families to pay for transit and other infrastructure.

She probably still believes that and would turn a deaf ear on Crombie's idea.

Mississauga has some other options to raise money for housing.

While the Liberals won't extend the municipal land transfer tax to cities outside Toronto, Crombie and mayors of other GTA communities such as Durham, Brampton, Vaughan and Oakville could raise the lobbying pressure on the current government or the next one if their is a change in government next year.

A low-debt city like Mississauga could issue municipal bonds to finance housing or go to the federal Infrastructure Bank being set up by the Trudeau government with concrete housing proposals. Speedier local approvals, rezoning and other moves could help boost the supply of affordable housing.

Finally, Mississauga could sell off part of its stake in Alectra Utilities, the new power company formed by the recent merger of local utilities Enersource, Horizon Utilities, Hydro One Brampton and PowerStream.

The province faced a cash crunch for transit and raised billions by selling off up to 60 per cent of Hydro One and the Trudeau government has been studying whether to privatize the country's airports to raise money for infrastructure.

All said, there are plenty of ways to raise money without hitting consumers with an unpopular sales tax hike. Crombie should drop the idea.

John Valorzi is a veteran journalist and former business editor of the Canadian Press.

Biking in The City: How Does It Move You?

by Alex Gregory

Does cycling move you?

The City Of Mississauga will be holding a public open house on June 21 at the Living Arts Centre to discuss that question, and are encouraging residents from across the city to weigh in with their opinions.

City officials developed the Cycling Master Plan in 2010 to create a framework that would shape a bikeable city.

From 2010 - 2016, the Master Plan set out to overhaul existing trails and bicycle facilities, in an effort to create an expanded network that would provide access to key destinations like public transit hubs.

During that time period, the city's usable trails, bicycle lanes and shared routes have increased by nearly 20%.

The Master Plan also included an initiative to look for available grant funding.

A multi-use trail connecting the Streetsville GO Station to Thomas Street was completed in 2016, while a $3,757,000 Public Transit Infrastructure Fund grant from the federal government for cyclist and pedestrian access to the Mississauga Transitway and GO stations was received in March of this year.

The City initiated a consultation process in 2017 to make information more accessible and inclusive to the public, and provide more opportunities for communication and feedback.

To that end, they created a site, DoesCyclingMoveYou.ca, to solicit input on the Master Plan and get people involved earlier in the project.

The "Does Cycling Move You?" Open House will run from 3:30 - 7 p.m. in the BMO Room at the Living Arts Centre (4141 Living Arts Drive). Those unable to attend the June 21 public meeting will have another opportunity in September.

Peel Police are cautioning residents to ride safely and wear a helmet. A public open house for Mississauga's Cycling Master Plan will be held on June 21.

Penguins Clinch the Cup

The Pittsburgh Penguins defeated the Nashville Predators to capture their second straight Stanley Cup.

With rookie goaltender Matt Murray nabbing a second shutout in a row and a late-game goal by Patric Hornqvist with a minute-and-a-half left in the third period, the Penguins handily won Game 6 2-0 Sunday in Tennessee.

This is the Penguins' second consecutive Stanley Cup, and the first time in nearly twenty years that an NHL team has won back-to-back championships.

Mississauga Sports Hall of Fame PDN sports recognizes and remembers

PAUL COFFEY

Peel's greatest hockey player!! He turned 56 on June 1st..

During a storied NHL career, Malton born Paul Coffey consistently hit the heights—easily one of the greatest defencemen ever to play the game. For now and possibly forever, he's the greatest hockey player ever to emerge from Mississauga.

By the numbers:

Coffey played 21 seasons in the NHL, won four Stanley Cups and was a 14 time NHL All-Star. He won three James Norris Memorial Trophies as the league's best blue liner.

There's more, much more: He played 1,409 NHL games, scoring 396 goals and adding 1,135 assists for 1,531 points.

Coffey also holds the NHL record for most points by a defenceman in the playoffs (196) and most goals by a defenceman in a single season, just missing 50 in 85/86: he had 48 that season. Five times in his career, he topped the 100-point mark for a season.

The kid from Malton first hit the ice as a "paperweight" playing house league in the MHL (Mississauga Hockey League).

It didn't take long for the future star to move up and be noticed. He played three seasons with the Ontario Hockey League's Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds. From there he was the Edmonton Oilers' first pick in the 1980 draft (sixth overall). He played in 72 games in his first season, accumulating 32 points (nine goals and 23 assists).

Coffey was a force on an Edmonton team: the dynasty that included superstars Wayne Gretzky, Mark Messier, and Jari Kurri, winning three Stanley Cups: 1984, '85, '87.

After seven seasons in Edmonton, it was on to the Pittsburgh Penguins where he won his fourth Stanley Cup in 1991. His other NHL stops: Los Angeles, Detroit, Hartford, Philadelphia, Chicago, North Carolina, and Boston.

Coffey also skated for Team Canada and was pivotal in three Canada Cup international wins: 1984, 1987 and 1991.

Four days after his 42nd birthday in 2003, he was inducted into the Mississauga Sports Hall of Fame.

This Week in Sports History

The New York Knicks won the NBA lottery and would go on to select Patrick Ewing out of Georgetown University with the No.1 overall pick.

Ewing was a superstar at Georgetown, as they reached the championship game of the NCAA tournament in three out of the four years he played there, winning it all in 1984.

Ewing would go on to have a great NBA career, as he was an 11-time all-star and was named one of the 50 Greatest Players in NBA History.

However, Ewing retired in 2002 without the one thing he truly wanted – an NBA championship ring.

The NBA instituted the Lottery System in 1985 due to the fact that it was speculated the Houston

Rockets, among others, were throwing games late in the season to finish with the worst record and therefore secure the first pick.

In the new system, each non-playoff team had an equal chance to obtain the first pick.

Happy Birthday, Ernie!

by Joe Snider

Look who's 65! Leo Ernest Whitt! The long time Blue Jays catcher (arguably their best ever) was born on June 13th, 1952 in Detroit. Ernie was with the Jays from 1977 to 89. Seems like Yesterday: On September 14, 1987, he hit three home runs in a game against the Baltimore Orioles, helping the Blue Jays hit a major league record ten home runs in the game. Toronto defeated the Orioles 18-3. Whitt would have the best season of his career in 1987, as he hit .269 with 19 HR and 75 RBI in 135 games. Career totals: 134 HR's, 534 RBI and a .249 BA. He remained active after his career by becoming an ambassador for Canadian baseball. He also helped the Canadian team get a 4th-place finish in the baseball tournament during the 2004 Summer Olympics.

Memories of the Hamilton Ticats... It's a Family Thing!

With another Canadian football league season set to begin, I got to thinking about memories of my home town Ticats!

Why? Well, my parents had season tickets back in the 50's (before I came along in '56). So, I've spent 60+ years as a fan. (Yes, even before I could walk!)

Back then it was Civic Stadium, then came Ivor Wynne Stadium and now--- Tim Horton's field.

The Tiger Cats Chant:

The players! The names are so easy to recall:

John Barrow, Joe Zuger, Frank Cosentino, Garney Henley, Dave Fleming, Tommy Joe Coffey, Angelo

Mosca, Chuck Ealey, Willie Bethea, Hal Patterson, Ian Sunter, Bernie Faloney, Tony Gabriel, Danny McManus, Darren Flutie etc.

The coaches: Sazio, Restic, Lancaster, Sutherin, Bruno, Kush and the man on the sidelines again this season (2017), Kent Austin.

Coincidentally, Austin was at the helm when the Saskatchewan Rough Riders beat the Ticats in the greatest GREY CUP game I've ever seen.

On November 26, 1989 at Skydome in Toronto, Austin won the MVP trophy for his 474 yards passing in the green Riders 43-30 victory.

Memories to last a lifetime...

Happy 72nd Birthday to former Leaf Claire Alexander

He gave up his job as a milkman in Orillia to join the Leafs in Toronto, but not before winning the Allan Cup with the local Terriers. "The Honest Milkman" as his Leaf mates called him, made his NHL debut at age 29 after persistent calls from scout and former junior teammate Gerry McNamara.

On the strength of his booming shot, Alexander once won a scoring championship playing Senior hockey with the Collingwood Shipbuilders.

In Toronto, he provided solid defensive play for an up-and-coming Leaf team. After three partial seasons in Toronto, he was traded to Vancouver. He later signed as a free agent with the WHA Oilers. The Leafs hired him to coach their AHL affiliate in St. Catharines in 1984, but the next year he left the organization when the team wanted him to become assistant coach to Dan Maloney with the Leafs. The Milkman balked at uprooting his family and instead returned to private life.

Alexander finished his career with 18 goals and 64 points in 155 career NHL games, along with just 36 penalty minutes. He also recorded 8 goals and 31 points in 54 WHA games.

Steelheads' Loss is 67's Gain

The Ottawa 67's have introduced James Boyd as General Manager and appointed André Tourigny Vice-President of Hockey Operations and Head Coach.

"We've hit the jackpot here," said 67's Governor Jeff Hunt. "This was a big decision for our hockey club and we scored big with James and André. We definitely got the right guys."

Boyd joins the 67's after spending the last decade with divisional rival Mississauga, where he led the high-scoring Steelheads to a Central Division banner (regular season) and the Eastern Conference title en route to OHL Final this past season.

The Mississauga native has spent the last six years with Steelheads, with five of those six years serving as both GM and head coach.

"I am very excited to join OSEG and the Ottawa 67's Hockey Club to continue building a championship calibre team," said Boyd.

"I look forward to working closely with Andre to assemble a coaching and management group that will provide the best support for our players on and off the ice."

After playing three seasons in the OHL that included time with the Kitchener Rangers, Belleville Bulls and the Ottawa 67's, Boyd turned to coaching in 1999 at the age of 23 and spent three seasons with Belleville as the assistant before taking over as head coach in 2003.

From there, Boyd became an Associate Coach with the Toronto St. Michael's Majors in 2004 remaining with the organization through their move to Mississauga in 2007 who became the Steelheads following the 2012 season.

Tourigny, like Boyd, boasts an impressive junior hockey résumé that began in 1998, spending two years as an assistant coach in Shawinigan.

For more than a decade (2002-2013) he served as both GM and head coach of the Rouyn-Noranda Huskies where he won the QMJHL Coach of the Year in 2005-06.

His commitment to junior hockey also served his country well as Tourigny was an assistant coach with Canada's World Junior teams winning silver in 2010 and 2011.

He joins the 67's after spending the 2016-17 season as the head coach of the Halifax Mooseheads.

Morning Smile!

Once there was a little boy that lived in the country.

His family had to use an outhouse, and the little boy hated it because it was hot in the summer and cold in the winter. The outhouse sat on the bank of a creek, and the boy decided one day that he would push that outhouse into the creek.

One day after a spring rain, the creek's water level had risen. The little boy decided today was the day to push the outhouse into the creek.

He got a large stick and started pushing. Finally, the outhouse toppled into the creek and floated away. That night, his dad told him they were going to the woodshed after supper. Knowing that meant a spanking, the little boy asked why.

The dad replied, "Someone pushed the outhouse into the creek today. It was you, wasn't it son?" The boy answered yes. Then he thought a moment and said, "Dad, I read in school today that George Washington chopped down a cherry tree and didn't get into trouble because he told the truth."

The dad replied, "Well, son, George Washington's father wasn't in the cherry tree."

Mississauga Waterfront Festival Brings Mosaics, Music and Memories To Port Credit

Port Credit is set to be taken over by a horde of live acts, performances and activities during the Mississauga Waterfront Festival, which will run this weekend (June 16 - 18) in Port Credit Memorial Park.

Billed as one of Peel Region's biggest festivals, the MWF returns with new bands, activities and even hands-on arts demonstrations to delight visitors of all ages.

Like previous years, the action will run across three stages, the Heritage Pavillion, Dave D'Eyre Square and the Main Stage.

Kicking off on Friday, June 16th, the festival brings a night of local country artists to the south end of the city, including the James Barker Band, Andrew Hyatt, Vanessa Marie Carter and more, plus the official opening ceremonies.

Saturday, June 17th sees the Rockin' River Revue take over the mainstage, featuring tribute bands representing such artists as KISS, Pat Benatar and Queen.

Visitors are also invited to take part on Saturday with a live art demonstration with Waterlution, in partnership with Greatness—The Great Lakes Project, during the 'Mi Lake Water Mosaics' event.

Commissioned artist Vanessa Logan will lead a hands-on demonstration where she will transfer photos of Lake Ontario to glass to serve as mementos of the area.

Participants for the Mosaics event can bring a photo, illustration or painting to the booth, where Logan will transfer the photos.

"My work draws greatly on physical reminders of the past that I reconstitute into sculpture or composed images," said Logan. "They present viewers with a non-linear story, which encourages them to create narratives of their own."

Logan's work will be showcased by the Small Arms Society after the festival.

Local resource guests will also be on-hand to discuss the value of water, including John Brennan of the Credit Valley Conservation, Bonita Ford of Living Hearth and artist Stuart Keeler. Guests will also have a chance to win a state-of-the-art, ultra high-efficiency toilet during a contest led by Peel Water! The festival caps off on Sunday with a homegrown talent showcase featuring local bands and singers.

The Heritage Stage and Dave D'Eyre Square will also be grooving all weekend, with live magic shows, dances and performances, including recent MARTY award-winning performance troupe Frog In Hand.

Admission is free all weekend!

Local Authors: Brampton Library Wants You

Brampton Library has just announced the submission phase of its brand new initiative called Local Authors Showcase. If you are a published author and Brampton Library member currently living in Peel, this is great news.

"Our new Local Authors Showcase is truly a community-led initiative that we are uniquely positioned to coordinate. We strive to be a neighbourhood champion that is responsive to the needs of our community. I invite you to discover many new favourite books written by local residents when the first Local Authors Showcase is revealed at our Chinguacousy Branch this August," said Brampton Library CEO Rebecca Raven.

Authors complete a submission agreement form for each book they want to submit. The forms are found by clicking a button right on the Library's homepage www.bramptonlibrary.ca. A maximum of three books per author, published between 2012 and 2017, will be considered. Self-published books are eligible.

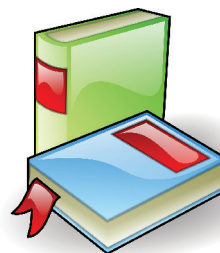

The first Local Authors

Showcase will be revealed as part of the second annual After Hours Book Bash—a celebration to officially close Brampton Library's Adult Summer Reading Club. This fun and free event gets underway on Friday, Aug. 18 at 6:00 pm at the Library's newly renovated Chinguacousy branch, in Brampton's Civic Centre.

"Our Local Authors Showcase is a wonderfully collaborative partnership between Brampton Library staff and Peel residents," said Julie Andrews-Jotham, director of Community Engagement & Partnerships. "Peel residents trust libraries to provide reading recommendations. Through local authors' submissions of their published works, Brampton Library can expand its book offerings, reflecting new and local works each year," added Collections Manager Cindy Poggiaroni.

Brampton Library inspires connections as reflected in this comment by an early participant: "After many years of reading books in your collection, it is a thrill to contribute one of my own."

LOCAL AUTHORS Showcase

Residents of Brampton, Caledon, and Mississauga are invited to learn more about Local Authors Showcase and the Adult Summer Reading Club at the Library's website: bramptonlibrary.ca and on Twitter @bramptonlibrary, Facebook, and YouTube.

Getting The Ball Rolling with New Pitch

Soccer pitch planned for Mississauga

by Alex Gregory

Mississauga residents will be getting a dedicated soccer pitch right in the heart of the city.

Having helmed a successful pilot project last fall, the City of Mississauga announced today that it had entered into a multi-year agreement with The Daniels Corporation to build an outdoor boxed soccer pitch in the downtown core after a successful pilot project.

The soccer pitch is to be named 'Daniels Community Field', and will be situated at the corner of Living Arts Drive and Prince of Wales Drive for a minimum of three years.

The pitch will be made from a welded aluminum design and will measure 15 x 30 metres when completed. It will include an artificial turf surface, soccer boards, two goals and netting.

Ward 4 Councillor John Kovac said in a statement that he was excited to see the development of the pitch, as it was something he had envisioned for the area for several years.

"As a soccer enthusiast and advocate of outdoor sports and recreation, I am thrilled to be able to announce this," he said. "This is not just a public amenity, but a boxed soccer pitch that will rival the ones that I have seen in urban, European locales.

Kovac stated that the pitch would be the first of its kind in Canada.

The pitch will be transferable to other locations, should Daniels require the use of the property before the completion of the nine-year agreement.

"The feedback we received from the community was incredibly supportive," said Mississauga Forestry and Parks Director Laura Piette.

"Many felt that the pitch instilled a sense of community, creating a place where residents of all ages and abilities could enjoy watching or playing soccer," she said, noting that the city had received inquiries from residents asking when the pitch would be put back up.

"We knew we had backing from the community to pursue this initiative. Bringing back the pitch allows us to provide an outdoor space for play in an area where parkland is limited and population density is high," she explained.

The sponsorship arrangement would start on July 1, 2017.

"Daniels builds with a passion for creating vibrant communities, like the community we are currently creating in Mississauga's City Centre," said Vice-President of Implementation Jacob Cohen.

We are helping to build a stronger urban neighbourhood for all ages by supporting a lifestyle that includes physical activity."

The City will be responsible for the installation, maintenance and repair of the soccer pitch.

Daniels will be responsible for the initial costs of the pitch, land preparation, landscaping, as well as lighting and seating.

City staff decided not to formally program the pitch but instead encourage informal, drop-in soccer games.

Daniels anticipates that the boxed soccer pitch will be in place late this summer.

Slight decrease in home transactions in Peel

by Erica Phillips

The Brampton Real Estate Board (BREB) reports a slight decrease in month-over-month home transactions in Peel. Only Caledon had an increase in property values.

On April 20, the Government of Ontario announced new measures to address hot housing markets, supply and affordability: there has been some impact, but is that because of the plan or the naturally occurring market forces and the time of year?

"Yes the markets have changed. However, it is difficult to contribute these changes to the Provincial Fair Housing Plan. As the real estate market traditionally enters an increase of property supply, known as the spring market just about the same time as the announcement from the Government," said Denise Dilbey, president-elect of BREB.

Calling this a balanced market, Dilbey said there were 1,120 home transactions in April in Brampton: in May there were 918. Caledon had 119 home transactions in April and in May. Mississauga had 1,127 home transactions in April and 1,071 in May. "Buyers now have time to shop around," she added.

The average sale price of detached home dipped in Brampton from $902,211 in April to $871,052 in May.

It was a similar situation in Mississauga for a detached home: $1,237,499 in April; $1,136,083 in May. Caledon had a slight increase from $1,077,006 in April to $1,190,527 in May.

"However, these properties range dramatically in property lot sizes, making it difficult to accurately predict a trend," Dilbey said.

It's hard to say which market in Peel is the hottest. Homes spent a few more days on market in May, but all three are close together: Brampton at 11, Caledon at 13 and Mississauga at 10. Single-family homes are still the best sellers by "value of sale."

City Hall Farmer's Market kicks into gear

A trip to Mississauga City Hall isn't complete without checking out the treats at the Lions Club Farmers' Market.

You can get fresh produce or tasty baked goods every Wednesday from 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. in Celebration Square.

Christian Berros serves up bread, croissants and other baked goods. "This is the third week of the market. It's been kind of slow because people are just realizing the market's actually open. "It takes a while for word of mouth and the spread of it, but it's good so far."

The food is prepared fresh at Cobb's Bakery everyday. Whatever isn't sold ends up going to charity.

"Nothing is being thrown out or anything. It's baked fresh everyday. Our bakers come in at midnight. They bake until 7 or 8 o'clock and we ship it out to whatever markets are going," he said.

39th Bread & Honey Races raise $20,000 for charities

Four Canadian records fell in the inaugural Streetsville Mile

by David Robinson

The longest continuous running road races in Peel went off without a hitch on the weekend of June 3-4 in Streetsville. The races raised $20,000 for local charities in Peel region and produced four Canadian records in the inaugural Streetsville Mile.

In spite of the rainy weather, nearly 1,000 people showed up at the Streetsville Kinsmen Club in south Streetsville to run for the pure pleasure of running and to raise money for charities.

Runners had their choice of participating in the 15k, 5k or the 1k family run.

In the 15k, Bonsa Gonfa of Toronto was the open winner with a time of 46:43 and received a cheque for $500. The female winner was Dehininet Jara also of Toronto with a time of 54:22 and also received a cheque for $500.

The masters over 40 winner was Morgan McNichol in 56:52 in the male division and Loudmila Kortchaguina was the female winner in 57:51.

The top Mississauga runners were William McIntee in 1:02:48 and Wendy Turner in 1:06:32.

The 5k had a very exciting finish line sprint featuring Evans Maikown of Hamilton and Phillip Parrot Migas of Mississauga. Brown edged out Migas by three seconds with a time of 15 minutes flat. Migas was a close second in 15:03.

Foot speed is a common trait in the Migas family. Older brother Thomas completed the distance in 20:12.

The top female in the 5k was Lindsay Tessier of Toronto with a time of 16:59.

Both Maikown and Tessier received cheques for $500 for their efforts.

The top masters over 40 runner was Dave Corlett with a time of 17:06 and Laura Horwitt was the top masters female in 22:20, both of Toronto.

The top Mississaugan male was Migas and the top female was Kinsley Curran with a time of 19:29.

The most interesting part of the weekend series of races was the inaugural Streetsville Mile on Saturday morning.

Conceived by race organizers as a way to boost attendance, the race had 212 participants running full out, straight down Queen Street from Britannia Road to the Kinsmen Club.

Hundreds of spectators who were waiting for the Bread & Honey Parade to commence were treated to a real display of running speed as 25 athletes broke the five-minute barrier considered a real milestone at this distance.

Sergio Ruez Williams of Mississauga won the inaugural event with a very quick time of 4:12. Dehininet Jara won the ladies division with a time of 5:05. Both athletes received $500 for their efforts.

Race organizers received many positive comments about this new race. This is definitely a new and interesting distance on the road running scene. Organizers are considering posting an additional $500 prize for the athlete who can break four minutes at next year's race.

Four women competing in their age groups broke Canadian records for the mile.

•Loudmila Kortchaguina (45) 5:17:8

•Heather O'Hagan (55) 6:02:4

•Clara Northcott (60) 6:42:2

•Nancy Wells (70) 7:54:4

This year's races featured two other firsts. The 15k route was changed to accommodate the fact that Streetsville Secondary School was not available as a venue due to construction. This new change received positive comments from the Peel Regional Police who provide traffic control.

Race Director Ellie De Souza also switched the start/finish venue to the Kinsmen Club and that move proved positive. "We were very pleased with the move", commented De Souza.

"The Kinsmen were great to work with and the venue allowed us to set up early and organize everything in one spot. We will most likely continue with this new venue as our new permanent home," added De Souza.

These races are all about participation and human achievement. Patrick Callahan, who has autism, competed in the 5k race and finished with a time of 32 minutes. He is nine years old and completed the event with aid of two support workers from the Autism Society.

Over $20,000 was raised for local charities including Trillium Health Partners, the Down Syndrome Association of Peel, Peel Region EMS and the Mississauga Y.

Next year's race is scheduled for June 3, 2018. Early bird sign up will open in fall 2017. For more race results, go to www.sportsstats.ca.
